HAPPY NEW YEAR

The Kindling Torch

By J. B. WHITE

The tumult and the shouting which usher the Old Year derisively out and drag the New Year hilariously in is, after all, only a spent hour of self abandon.

For when the noise has died and the little night is passed, the fact remains and the fact is a milestone set firmly in the fibre of our living journey, and it would come if we slept, or if we kept vigil or indeed, if we passed into eternity in advance of the event.

It is fatality we celebrate; it is human limitation we speed into the night with the Old Year, knowing that all things are beyond our control, and thus we play the bravo, daring Time to do what he can and will, since the dawn is not our numbering.

For some the night of capering; for others the morning of reflection. "Resist the beginnings," says Orvid, but he speaks of temptations. "Those that with haste," remarks Cassius, "will make a mighty fire, begin it with weak straws.

That is wisdom, and the weak straws of our flame are the gleanings of New Year's Day, left from the vanished harvest of the dead year.

Spenser was not the first, nor the last, to discover that "each goodly thing is hardest to begin," but there is quite a common discovery that even the weakest of good intentions leaves a reproach among its ruins, and that is something.

Life is a succession of moods, thru which we pass again and again; and, according to our character, some grow strong and some more faintly marked as they revolve.

The coming of the New Year is of all these moods the most arresting, because it conspires with the seasons to symbolize life itself. He is a bold man who dares shut his ears to the toiling of the summons this day echoes; he is a foolish man, too, for if the bells monotone their warning they also peal their promise.

Who knows of tomorrow? Of another such day, a year hence, and what shall be written? Whither the trail; what the rewards? Something stirs within as the day glides into the year; and that profound element of high adventure, which shines through the eyes of a boy whom all the earth awaits a conqueror, flickers, perchance flames, and lights 'a candle of understanding in thine heart, which shall not be put out.'

Good intentions are not to be despised; they are their own benediction. Not all are wise enough to collect weak straws, but the fault is born of zeal. So long as we ponder the matter and realize, if once a year, that it is even better and more useful to live for good ideals than to die for them, each New Year holds toward us the kindling torch. For these the peal of promise, and the dawn after the night.

SCHOOL CHILDREN IN WAR ON THE RATS

DECEMBER 15 TO MARCH 15 SET ASIDE FOR FIGHT ON RAT PLAGUE

December 15th, 1927 to March 15th, 1928 is a period set aside in Milam county when all teachers and school children in particular are asked to join in a drive against the plague of rats which have swept over our country after the good grain and feed crops produced in the year just closing.

Prizes are to be given for the first, second and third places for children who kill the greatest number of rats and a prize is to be given the school that kills the greatest number. Awards are to be made on basis of percentage of enrollment so every school may compete. The children are to bring rat tails, or in case of small rats, they are to bring the little rodents alive or dead, to be counted by the teachers in order that an accurate record may be kept.

The United States Public Health Service plans the number of rats in the country as twice that of the human population and statistics on the subject show that it costs on an average of $1.82 annually to feed each rat. Estimating our population at 110,000,000, we may safely estimate the number of rats at 220,000,000. This means that they consume over four hundred million dollars worth of food annually. It is difficult for us to conceive of such wholesale waste and only the most persistent means can much of it be checked.

Since the fields have been cleaned, barns, outhouses and wood piles have become good hiding places for rats that will destroy not only hundreds of little chickens and turkeys when the spring months come. Rat-terriers, cats, traps, poison and every other means will have to be employed in order to rid the county of the pests.

Children do not tire as readily as adults and by making a united drive, thousands of dollars will be saved the people of Milam County.

Little can be accomplished unless concerted efforts are put forth. All the teachers who are willing to cooperate and enroll their school should notify their county superintendent, Mrs. K. K. Robbins as early as possible. Unless children work with their teachers it will not be possible for a record to be kept. Valuable lessons on cooperation and thrift, may be taught in connection with this movement. A study of the habits, food, etc., of rats will convince any child that the rat thrives on foods which will make children well and strong and foods which are needed by hungry children all over our land.

CHEVROLET PROMISES SPECTACULAR VALUE

NEW CAR HERE ON JANUARY
FIRST SAYS CAMERON
CHEVROLET COMPANY

Promising the most spectacular low priced automobile of all time, the Coleman Chevrolet Company announced here today that a complete new line of motor cars will be introduced to the public January first.

In confirming reports that Chevrolet would very shortly introduce a new car of surpassing interest, W. E. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor Company, declared that the official announcement covering all details of Chevrolet's sensational new product would come Sunday January 1st. No details will be available until that time, he said.

Chevrolet assembly plants have been in production on the new car since December 12. Factories in Flint, Mich., Tarrytown, N. Y., St. Louis, Mo., Oakland, Cal., Buffalo, N. Y., Janesville, Wisc., and Norwood, O., have been humming with activity preparing for the highways the first of the new cars that promise to make motor car history in 1928.

Shipments of the new cars to dealers have been leaving the various assembly plants since December 15 so that the vast country-wide dealer organization may be prepared for the introductory showing next Sunday. Unbridled enthusiasm is being displayed over the new cars by Chevrolet field sales officials, who have been milling into Detroit for private showings of the new line.

Practically every Chevrolet dealer in the United States will have cars ready for public inspection January first. From Bangor, Me. to San Diego and from Miami to Vancouver there will be simultaneous exhibitions of the new car that has caused so much discussion in the last few months.

This gigantic distribution achievement of supplying thousands of dealers with cars in such a brief space of time was made possible only through the farseeing policy of the Chevrolet organization and the tremendous resources and production facilities of the Chevrolet Motor Company. Never in the history will so many new models of one make have been placed in dealers' hands in such a limited space of time.

Cars will be ready for the boulevards and highways immediately after the first of the year. Production at the various assembly plants through the United States is racing along as fast as precision manufacturing will permit.

Unofficial reports from the Chevrolet offices here say that the new car will embody many improvements in design and construction. New standards of beauty are promised. Easier handling and smoother riding qualities are heralded as some of the outstanding features of the new Chevrolet with a beauty and style appeal, unexampled in the low price field.

Without disclosing details, Chevrolet officials declared that the new cars experience and progress in the building of low priced transportation. Less would embody the results of 13 years' testing on the General Motors proving ground have been brought to bear on the new product, officials declared. In fact all the resources of General Motors have been employed for months to design and build the car that is heralded to be by a wide margin the greatest automobile ever offered by Chevrolet.

More than 5,500 newspapers across the entire country will assist through their advertising columns in broadcasting the announcement, which will take the form of one of the most comprehensive advertising campaigns ever attempted in the automobile industry. Every city, town and hamlet in the country will read the details of the 1928 Chevrolet on New Year's day.

For the sake of economy many couples in a workmen's quarters in France are married en masse. They assemble every Saturday, line up, and the principals and witnesses sign the register as they pass into the big 'wedding salon' of the city hall.

Constipation!

How to Keep Bowels Regular

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated men, women, children, and particularly old folks, had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and many oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, biliousness, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but best of all, it never grips, sick-ens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

WEST DEFEATS EAST TEXAS BOYS STAR

JOEL HUNT OUTSTANDING MAN AMONG GREAT MEN OF
THE GAME

Kezar Stadium, San Francisco, Dec. 26.—Western football proved superior to the Eastern game when West conquered East, 16 to 6, in the annual charity game here Monday. The game was played in bright weather, before a crowd of 27,000 people. This was the third successive time that a team composed of Western college stars had defeated an eleven picked from outstanding players of the East.

The West scored touchdowns in the first and second periods and also a safety in the second period.

Joel Hunt, 165-pound halfback of the Texas Aggies, was the outstanding star of the encounter. His fine runs and long kicking counted largely in the Western victory. Caldwell, Yale was the East's most scintillating performer.

The West scored a touchdown three minutes after play started, when Matthews of Texas Christian recovered a fumble on the 22 yard line and Hunt from Texas Aggies broke thru the line on the first play. Wilson, Washington fullback, kicked goal to make the score West 7, East 0.

The teams struggled on even terms for the rest of the period with the ball see-sawing up and down the field. The East gained slightly in the exchange of kicks, with Caldwell of Yale booting the ball 40 and 45 yards.

The West added nine points to their total early in the second period, scoring a safety and touchdown. With the ball on his 13 yard line, Amos, Washington and Jefferson quarter-back, missed a bad pass from center and was thrown behind his own line.

The touchdown followed immediately after, when Kutsch, quarterback passed five yards to Mann, Southern Methodist who ran 15 yards across the line. Wilson kicked goal to make the score West, 16, East 0.

The West continued to outplay their Eastern rivals during the rest of the period and twice threatened to score.

On one play, Mann, passed 20 yards to Gilmore, fullback, substituting for Wilson, who ran three yards to stop on the East's three yard line. The West lost the ball, however, two plays later when Mann's pass fell over the goal line and the East took the pigskin on their own 20 yard line. The West regained the ball when Amos attempted pass was partly blocked and Yoder, tackle, jumped into the air to snag the ball. The period ended as the Western team started a drive, 10 yards from the goal.

Within the shadow of their own goal line the West braced up at the beginning of the fourth period and held off the Eastern threat. Carrothers, St. Ignatus, intercepted Amos' pass and the West kicked out of danger. The East started a passing attack which was smothered when Wilson intercepted Amos' throw. The ball changed hands steadily as both teams intercepted passes. The East was penalized 30 yards, half the distance from the ball was to their own goal line, when Weinstock, Western Maryland tackle, struck Hunt, Texas Aggies, in the face. Weinstock was banished from the game.

The East opened a terrific drive in the third period and scored a touchdown five minutes after receiving the kickoff. Long runs by all members of the Eastern backfield brought the ball into Western territory, where Amos passed 20 yards to Fischwick, Yale, who was stopped on the 12 yard line. Caldwell went over on the next play, going around right end on a double reverse. Caldwell's try for point was blocked by Wilson. Score, West 16, East 6.

The East continued to outplay the Westerners during the third period, driving through the line and going around the ends steadily for long gains.

Conner, New York University, half-back and Caldwell both pulled off spectacular runs, Conner breaking through for 19 yards and sharing a 32 yd. pass from Amos that put the ball on the West's 19 yd. line as the period ended.

JOEL HUNT

This great Texas Aggie quarter-back and All-American squad star, electrified the West Monday in the annual East-West game and now sport writers over the coast area are proclaiming him a greater than Caldwell of Yale who, although disqualified, would have been the unanimous choice for all-American.

Hunt was the outstanding star of the game, with Gerald Mann of Southern Methodist, both making touchdowns, the only two of the game for the West. Hunt out punted the Yale star, was greater in broken field running and decidedly the spark plug of the great galaxy of western talent that thrilled California in the annual classic.

Rags Matthews of Texas Christian left end, was responsible for the halt of the East drive time and time again, the eastern coaches failing to take Rags out of the play even with four men assigned to the task. Rags is the only man that ever stopped Caldwell. The Texas star end taunted the mighty Yale back and dared all to circle his end. The only touchdown of the game for the East was made when Matthews was taken out and Schuh of Washington put in. Rags was sent in for the next kickoff.

Gerald Mann, making one of the touchdowns, was a great star, relieving Hunt for a few minutes in the second quarter, after the Aggie Mercury had swept the stands with wild acclaim in a nineteen yard run thru the team for the first touchdown. Mann received a pass of 10 yards from Cowboy Kutsch, the West's quarter and scampered 15 yards for a touchdown.

Siki Sikes was responsible for the safety scored by the West in the second quarter when he rushed across the goal and downed Amos who had recovered a bad pass. Sikes played a great game and it is said they did not circle his end either.

Joel Hunt now belongs to the ages so far as his football career is concerned. Never was there a greater than he and despite the isolation of Texas teams he is now proclaimed one of the greatest backs of all time. There is nothing Hunt cannot do on a football field, and do it better than any other man. His winged feet have now flashed across the goal line of American heart strings for the great touchdown that will live in history.

Matches should always be kept out of the reach of children and parents should be especially cautious around the holiday season when there is so much extra inflammable materials in the house, suggests the national safety council.

The Yuletide Cheer

By FRED W. PEARSON
in Washington Post

IN THE providence of Nature
There's a consonance of good,
Permeating and elating
All the cosmic brotherhood.
Though the waves of deep depression
May engulf our struggling forms,
Like the gleaming of our dreaming
Are the heights above the storms;
And one peak that glistens clearly
Like an iridescent cone,
Is the Yuletide Cheer, which yearly
Brings delight to every one.

High above the range of Virtues
Is this crowning pinnacle,
And its luring and enduring
Message freely comes to all.
Shops and homes are decorated;
Hearts are throbbing merrily;
And each glowing face is showing
Just how sweet is charity;
For the season of Good Feeling,
Dawning as the old year dies,
Turns to gladness all our sadness,
And to friends our enemies.

Some, perhaps, are thinking darkly
Of their lack of means to give;
They are lonely, and can only
By the utmost efforts live;
So, with fainting hearts, and tearful,
Their self-pity grows extreme,
When a ringing voice and cheerful,
Sounds this axiom supreme:
In the providence of Nature
There's a service all may find,
And the measure of its treasure
Is the art of being kind.

Reception Is Given For Miss Thompson

One of the outstanding social affairs of the week was a reception at the country club last Thursday given by Mrs. Leland Green honoring Miss Mervia Thompson of Ben Arnold who will become the bride of William Howard Baskin on January 2.

The rooms of the club were attractively decorated in Christmas motifs. Floor baskets of red berries were placed about, large clusters of mistletoe were hung above the doors and sprigs of cedar wre placed on the mantle and at other places interlaced with the bright red berries.

Miss Helen Green met the guests at the door and ushered them to the receiving line. Mrs. Leland Green, hostess, Miss Mervia Thompson, Mrs. Lena Baskin, Miss Clyde Baskin, Miss Sinia Reeves, Ben Arnold; Miss Ruth Kemp and Miss Lena Bell Baskin all were in the receiving line.

During the musical program Mesdames C. S. Peyton and A. J. Triggs and W. R. Hoover and Miss Agnes Henderson gave well rendered vocal numbers. Miss Mildred Clinton gave a violin solo. Mrs. J. L. Clinton and Miss Helen Flinn presided at the piano during the afternoon. Miss Ruth Kemp gave two very interesting readings. Little Mary Ann Green, daughter of the hostess, a wee little Miss of six, gave two very catchy readings in a sweet and childish way.

On the table in the dining room was a beautifully decorated tree for the center piece. Mrs. Eugene Green and Miss Pauline Green served coffee and tea at either end of this daintily appointed table. The guests were served a salad plate. Misses Mary Bell Batte, Harriett Flinn, Dorothy Denson, Sue Griffin Webb and Bethel Middleton in lovely evening dresses assisted in hostess duties in the dining room. Misses Mary Frances Green and Reba Young assisted in the entertainment.

Texas and Texans

By Will H. Mayes

Christmas Decorations

I have never before seen the Christmas spirit so beautifully manifested in city and community decorations. Here in Austin the merchants, the civic clubs, the churches, the schools, the fire stations, the homes, apparently have vied with each other in the effort to commemorate in some suitable way the birth of Christ the streets, the stores and other buildings being a vertiable panorama of green and of bright lights. And Austin is by no means an exceptional place in that respect for the many papers that come to my desk tell of the same things being done everywhere in Texas. There is less evidence of rowdiness, noisy hurrah and a more reverent, worshipful spirit is being shown in the Christmas celebration from year to year, all of which is a hopeful sign that the world is getting better.

Christmas Charities

Better than the decorations, the lights and the absence of rowdiness, is the spirit of charity and neighborliness so evident everywhere. As at no other season, the hearts of the people are open to the needs of the unfortunate and the distressed. Not many persons anywhere have gone without the necessary comforts during the Christmas holidays and many have been bountifully supplied with even the small luxuries of life. The Christmas spirit of service, of helpfulness, is growing in the breasts of the people, and brotherly kindness is increasingly apparent despite the records of horrible crime here and there. Now that Christmas needs have been supplied to the needy, a New Year's effort should be put forth to make it possible for every family to provide a comfortable living for itself.

Labor Survey Needed

In every city, town and community, concerted effort should be made to find out the employment needs of every individual. This could be done if the people would organize for a systematic survey to ascertain who is idle, why they are idle and what kind of work they are able to do. With these facts at hand every place should set about providing the opportunity for useful work at fair remuneration. Most persons, even though resigned to consider themselves objects of charity, would be glad to care for themselves if shown just how they could do it. It is clear duty of a prosperous public to show the way.

The Country Press

If the publishers of the weekly papers in Texas are not enjoying the Christmas season, it is not for lack of business. Many of them have been running as much as 40 pages crowded to the utmost with attractive advertising and few indeed have been issuing less than 16 pages before Christmas Day. It has been a season of money making for publishers if they can make money at all. Some of them have had to apologize to their readers for the small amount of reading matter carried, but the readers have enjoyed and profited by the advertising about as much as the publishers. So everybody is happy—publishers, merchants who have advertised, and the readers of the advertisements, for all have gained by it.

Foresees Farm Prosperity

Dr. B. Youngblood, director of the Texas Farm Experiment Stations, says that when all the world learns to dress for convention, fashion and personal hygiene they will be wearing goods and the Southern cotton farm-ers in existence. He thinks this er will be one of the most prosperous condition is rapidly coming about, and says that even now consumption of cotton is increasing faster than production and that the goal so much desired by the cotton producer is already on the way to be reached. Let us hope that Dr. Youngblood is a prophet with a clear vision.

Promoting Thrift

Here is an example that is not copyrighted and may be followed anywhere in Texas. All that is required is to get three men of the right kind together to lay out their plans. The example is furnished, according to the Dallas News by three citizens of Wills Point—H. Gilchrist, a banker; J. C. Wells, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and W. M. Foster, a tenant farmer. The first two practically formed a partnership with the farmer, furnishing him some Jersey cows, some pigs, some turkeys, and some chickens—all fine stock. It is too long a tale to tell here, but the two silent partners have started the tenant farmer on the way to the early ownership of his own farm. As a good service work, can you beat it?

Some Lamesa Crops

Some Lamesa farmers have started out to show that money can be made on other crops than cotton. A carload of broom corn has been shipped from Lamesa and it brought the grow-er an average of about $35.00 per acre. One farmer planted 400 acres of sunflowers. It was threshed like maize and sold at 5 cents a pound to chicken-feed mills. The production was slightly more than 700 pounds to the acre. You can figure the gross receipts and the probable profits and compare them with cotton.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, say well-known druggists here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful. This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

sisted by the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, will run a "farm and home demonstration special" over its lines, beginning at Navasota, January 16 and ending at Follet, February 25, making 117 stops at points in its lines at which the exhibits will be shown and lectures will be made by experts. The central purpose is to show farmers that they should have several sources of income and what sources will likely pay best. Newspapers along the route should look up the itinerary and aid in getting out large crowds, for no progressive farmer who can attend one of these meetings should miss it.

Mistletoe Shipments

A carload of mistletoe has been shipped from Brownwood to Philadelphia to encourage Christmas kissing in the Quaker City. Brownwood has claimed credit for being the first Texas point to sponsor such wholesale oscillatory exercise, but Graham comes along and says it has in previous years shipped several carloads of the kiss licenser to Eastern cities.

Expert Ratkiller Wanted

Longview, through its Chamber of Commerce, is making an effort to enlist Congressman John C. Box, to induce the Biological Survey to furnish that town a rodent expert. In plain English, Longview wants a ratkiller. A ratkilling contest in Smith county resulted in the death of 53,856 rats in five weeks.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping. Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine."

XMAS EVE PROGRAM BY DALLAS STATION 24TH

GOVERNOR MOODY AND OTHERS WILL EXCHANGE GREET-INGS SATURDAY NIGHT

W. R. R. Broadcasting Station of Dallas will broadcast a special Christmas Eve program, the chief feature of which will be "Texas Manufacturers Playing Santa Claus to the World."

The program will start at 10:00 P.
M., December 24, and will continue until 2:00 or 3:00 o'clock A. M. The program will be given under the auspices of manufacturers, producers and public spirited men of Texas.

The purpose of the special program is to advertise and introduce Texas made products and manufacturers to the country at large. The date selected is the first anniversary of the "Texas Hour," a radio feature which has been on the air nightly for nearly a year.

Manufacturers and other members of the Resource Society will contribute gifts for the occasion. It is said there will be about two thousand gifts of the value approximately $20,000 to the nature of a Christmas gift-giving $25,000. The program will take on party and the prizes will be awarded grams. There will be a succession of upon receipt of Western Union tele-gift-giving announcements at three or four minute intervals during the entire period of the program. The plan of successfully announcing new sets of gifts at short intervals will, it is believed, maintain and sustain the interest of the radio audience, and as a result, will probably bring about a very large file of telegrams. All telegrams must be addressed to W. R.

R., Dallas.

The Santa Claus party will be in-terpersed with a musical and novelty program broadcast from the band stand in the park at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, Mexico, over a Texas chain comprising W. R. R., Dallas, W. B. A.
P., Fort Worth, W. J. A. D., Waco,
K. F. M. D. Beaumont, and K. P. R.
C., Houston. Other stations may be added to the chain. Governor Moody and the mayors of Dallas, Fort Worth,
Houston and others will exchange
Christmas greetings over the chain.

A comprehensive advertising plan has been worked out in order to give the Christmas Eve party as much publicity as possible. The Associated Press has already carried an article about it and will follow it up with others. Announcements will be made in the radio journals and magazines.
Over three thousand R. C. A. dealers will co-operate in the advertising program. Nightly announcements will be made from the broadcasting stations in the chain.

A Christmas Song

By TUDOR JENKS

WHEN mother-love makes all things bright,
When joy comes with the morning light,
When children gather round their tree,
Then Christmas Babe,
We sing of Thee!

When manhood's brows are bent in thought
To learn what men of old have taught,
When eager hands seek wisdom's key
Wise Temple Child,
We learn of Thee!

When doubts assail, and perils fright,
When, groping blindly in the night,
We strive to read life's mystery,
Man of the Mount,
We turn to Thee!

When shadows of the valley fall,
When sin and death the soul appall,
One light we through the darkness see—
Christ on the Cross
We cry to Thee!

And when the world shall pass away,
And dawn at length the perfect day,
In glory shall our souls made free,
Thou God enthroned,
Then worship Thee.

A Christmas Prayer

O God, who makes us glad with the yearly remembrance of the birth of Thine only Son, Jesus Christ; grant that as we joyfully receive Him for our Redeemer so we may with sure confidence behold Him when He shall come to be our Judge, who now liveth and reigneth with Thee and the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end.
Amen.

Hurts, or Bladder is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day,
also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

She Helped Everett Do His Christmas Shopping

FOR weeks pretty Clare Reynolds, the new girl of a busy insurance
office, worked directly across the table from Everett Moore without having drawn even a glance from him. And this was unusual for Clare.

Everett seemed glued to the sheet before him, but Clare, determined not to be the ice cracker, walked and hoped that sometime, somehow, something would happen to force him to look up and speak to her. She liked this good-looking, earnest-working chap in spite of his utter indifference, and just had to steal a furtive glance
at him occasionally.

It was Christmas eve and not a word had passed between them. He was still oblivious of her presence.

Early in the afternoon Clare put away her things and was putting on her wraps when some one questioned:
"Leaving us, are you?"

"Yes, the boss is letting me off to finish up my Christmas shopping.
I—"

"Shopping! Shopping!" almost shouted Everett Moore, looking up, startled, and for the first time, catching Clare's eye. She felt her cheeks flush. "Say, are you going Christmas buying, Miss—ah—Miss—"

"Reynolds," she replied. "Yes. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"Well, I should say! I had forgotten, really. Could I trot along with you and get you to help me make a couple of purchases? I never know what to buy for a woman."

Clare's heart was beating wildly.
"Sure, I'll help you. I rather like spending somebody's money."

Out they went together. The sharp wind whizzing around the corner sang a joyous tune to Clare. Everett held her firmly by the arm and deftly guided her among the busy late shoppers, and within a very short time a floor lamp for his mother and an atom-izer for his sister had been decided on and ordered delivered at once.

They then went to a tea room for refreshments, and there, over the teacups, they really became acquainted.
It was hard for Everett to leave her, but she had problems of her own to solve and time was getting short.

Christmas morning a bunch of red roses with a note attached from Everett was among Clare's most highly treasured gifts. The note read:

"From an admiring friend. Why didn't we know each other long ago?"

And Clare also wondered why—

Tennessee was once named Franklin.

The Rev. Granville Ed-troubled for a long time with constipation and its attendant ills, which kept him from feeling fit. He writes:

"Luckily I then, which was about twenty years ago, heard about Black-Draught and began to take it. After taking Black-Draught for a little while I noticed that my trouble began to disappear. The poisons, which had accumulated in the body, as a result of constipation, were elimi-

per cent. better. The dizzy feeling, which I had felt al-

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Menthol-Sulphur to an itching, burning or breaking out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Menthol-Sulphur at any drug store.

Child Dies Suddenly

Rockdale, Tex., Dec. 24.—The two year old daughter, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Fossey, died suddenly Friday afternoon.

POINSETTIAS and Princess by Anna G. Newson

IT WAS December 23; there would be a rush for Christmas flowers at the Alpha Floral rooms that day; and the girls were already busy getting the windows cleaned and re-decorated.

"How did Miss Anne say to put those poinsettias in the east window?" asked Ardue Ellington, who was helping out during the holidays.

"The old girl said to graduate them," answered Jane Duncan, who was "regular help" at the shop. "Of course, with you, a college student, graduate means to turn out—to finish up. That's what I'd like to do with these flowers—finish them. I'm so tired of them."

"I'm afraid you don't love flowers," voiced Ardue. "I do."

"You would," retorted Jane, who liked for everyone to think her sophisticated if not depraved. "I like the little old coin I get at the end of the week; and it's little enough, believe me. But come here, innocent, and I'll show you how to graduate the posies. Park the shortest ones next the glass, the taller ones next, and so on—like this—" and she placed four plants in to illustrate. "Better water them first, though."

Ardue saturated the black sand in the flower pots, and carried other pots from another room while the others drained a bit.

Miss Anne called from a workroom at the rear, and Jane answered the call, while Ardue worked at the window. Just as Jane returned with an armload of made-up flowers to box, Henry Von Hagen came into the shop.

"I better take him; he's a regular," said Jane in an undertone; and she deposited the orders on a table.

"May I help you, please?" she asked, demurely enough.

"Some poinsettias, I think," answered the man, and Jane led the way to the table where Ardue was working.

Henry looked at the plant Ardue was lifting for the window. He also looked at the girl.

"This is a beauty," he said, looking at the girl, though he indicated the plant. "I'll take this one, and these two," he continued, selecting other plants. "Then I'd like to have some of the cut blossoms—which the botanist tells us aren't a blossom at all. Beautiful enough, however."

Jane went before him into an adjoining room, where he selected two dozen of the cut flowers with stems of varied length. Back in the office he gave the address; wrote a check in payment; and left the shop looking at Ardue Ellington.

"That nut's sayin' it with poinsettias, I'd say," remarked Jane, going back to packing the flowers.

"I'd say a prince instead of a nut—if I were getting the flowers," smiled Ardue.

"Well, I'll say the way he lapped you would indicate that he'd say 'princess' to you, innocent. Why'n't you flirt a bit?"

"Who is he," asked Ardue, ignoring her question.

"Head engineer at the Public Service or something. Name's Von Hagen. His old man's a professor here for years—romantic languages. You ought to know him. Maybe you've had classes under the old gink."

"I think I do know who he is; but I have no classes with him till next year. But who were the flowers for?"

"Gettin' inquisitive already?" asked the girl, teasingly. "Well, he's sending them as a Christmas present to his mamma," she said, accenting the last syllable.

The conversation was stopped by a customer, and for the rest of the day a busy stream of happy shoppers ran in and out of the shop.

Miss Anne was wrapping some poinsettias for the girls; Ardue selecting some violets for her coat collar; and the Christmas greetings were being exchanged at the same time. Jane exclaimed:

"Well, I gotta beat it. My sweetie's takin' me to the Orpheum tonight. Suppose you're goin' to one of the big 'Y.W.' parties that some of the professors' wives are throwing for the orphan students?"

"Yes, and I'm mighty thankful for a chance to go to a party. It's pretty nice, when one must be away from home at Christmas. The funny part is that there are three parties, and none of us knows to which party he's going—or at whose home the party will be. We are to be called for and are to ask no questions. Isn't that thrilling?"

"'Twould almost startle a turtle, don't ya know. Well, good night; don't do anything I wouldn't." And Jane was gone.

Ardue enjoyed the "crunch, crunch" of the snow under her feet as she hurried to her boarding house, where she removed the supper from the oven where her landlady, Mrs. Julien, had left it. That lady was helping at a church bazaar, and since Ardue was the only "left-over" student in the house, she had told Mrs. Julien not to bother about her.

After a hurried and rather lonely supper, Ardue bathed and dressed with much care, and then came down to sit in the cheer of the grate fire. Three candles burned in the center of the big window.

"Sweet of Mrs. Julien to burn one for me along with hers and Bob's," said Ardue.

She wondered what the folks at home were doing, and tried to visualize every member of the family. Perhaps they, too, would burn a candle for her. When she became a little homesick, she stroked again and again her shining nails. She stood, looking into the center of a huge poinsettia on the table. She remembered a dream she had had the night before, and that she had not remembered till that minute; but just then an auto horn sounded outside.

She hurried into her coat and hat, pulling on her gloves as she went down the steps. Some one she didn't know was coming up the walk. He turned, after greetings, and they went together to the waiting car.

"Warmer in front," he said, helping her into the seat. The car skidded now and then on the icy streets. And Ardue had no more than buttoned her coat collar high around her neck, being careful of the violets, than the driver said:

"Here we are," as he drew up in front of a large home and stopped.

He assisted Ardue to alight, walked to the steps with her, lifted his hat and said "good night."

"Good night—and thank you," answered the girl.

Ardue went up the broad steps and rang the bell. Henry Von Hagen opened the door.

"Good evening," he said cordially, taking her hand. "Mother, this is Miss Ellington."

"I'm so glad you could come. Go upstairs to the first room you come to."

When Ardue came down the steps she was met by Henry, who led her into a big living room. Poinsettias were grouped in the big old-fashioned bay window. Gazing into one of the flowers, Henry said:

"You know, I had the queerest dream last night."

"So did I," joined Ardue.

"I dreamed," continued Henry, "that I went to the opera, and when the curtains were drawn—"

"There was a huge poinsettia on either side of the stage," interrupted Ardue.

"And when the orchestra played 'Dreams of Love' a—"

"A prince stepped out of one of the flowers—a prince with page boys, attendants, and so on," interrupted the girl again.

"How in the world could you know what I dreamed?" asked Henry. "But you do; and a princess stepped out of the other bloom—a princess with as many attendants and ladies-in-waiting as there were persons with the prince. They began a—"

"A march to music toward the center front of the stage," said Ardue.

Henry's countenance revealed surprise, excitement, incredulity; but he continued:

"How could you know what I dreamed—I didn't even remember it myself till I looked at that flower. But they did march toward the center front of the stage. And when they met, the prince kissed the princess, and she put her arms around his neck—"

"And you were the prince," said Ardue.

"And you were the princess," finished Henry.

Their lips met; her arms were about his neck; his arm encircled her waist. Some one in another room laughed aloud. Then Henry and Ardue saw that they were under the mistletoe.

Unabashed, Henry said:

"I've been looking for you always, dear; when will you marry me?"

Ardue replied:

"Yes, I knew yesterday that you were the one—and then that dream—that proves we belong to each other—"

"Of course, I've dreamed of you at ways—but when will we be married?"

"Just any time you say, dear."

JOHN T. GAMBILL, 62 DIES SUDDENLY HERE

PIONEER BUSINESS MAN AND CITIZEN BURIED IN OAK HILL CEMETERY

John T. Gambill, 62, died suddenly at four o'clock p. m. Friday December 23, 1927 at his office in the business district from heart failure.

The death of Mr. Gambill was a shock to his family and wide circle of friends in Milam County and over the state. Mr. Gambill had been home for lunch and had returned to his office and was stricken a few minutes before his death. Physicians were called but despite their efforts to revive him he succumbed.

In 1918 Mr. Gambill suffered a severe attack of influenza which settled about his heart and since that time, almost ten years his health had not been good and at times he suffered from heart attacks.

Friends of Mr. Gambill who saw him return from lunch were profoundly shocked as he had apparently been in the best of spirits and in his usual health. Word spread over the city rapidly that Mr. Gambill was dead and everywhere there was genuine sorrow.

John T. Gambill was a native of Washington county, Texas, a native of the lone state and a man of fine traits of character, loyal to his friends and those whom he loved. He was fair in his dealings and dependable. His word was his bond and he endeared himself to his host of friends by these qualities.

Most of his active life was spent in Milam county. He came here when 16 years of age and had spent 46 years as a citizen in this county. During this more than four decades he was actively identified with business life being for the past twenty years owner of the transfer business in which he was engaged when he died. He had acquired land in the Little River bottoms and was owner of oil producing lands at Minerva. He had been a peace officer here.

It is said of John T. Gambill that he never turned away appeals for charity, was kind to those in less fortunate circumstances and helped many people in need. To such qualities as these were attracted friends, men who knew and appreciated his charity and sense of justice.

He united with the Christian church in 1886 at Holtzclaw bridge then a community where protracted meetings were held.

He was married to Miss Johanna Brown at Rockdale 42 years ago. Mrs. Gambill who survives him is a native of Alabama. They had no children of their own but adopted and reared two boys, Noel Brown of Brownsville and Robert Chapman of Dallas, and gave to them a home life and protection and comfort. Both were here to attend the funeral.

Two brothers survive him. Seth Gambill of Marlin and Green Gambill who resides in Nebraska. Three nephews, Jim, Johnnie and Young Gambill reside in Houston also a niece, one sister, Miss Mary Gambill at Houston.

Funeral services were conducted at ten o'clock Sunday morning December 25, 1927, Rev. Wallace Jones, delivering the funeral address.

Floral offerings were many and old time friends and loved ones gathered about the grave in Oak Hill Cemetery to pay their last tribute to one they had known and loved and respected in life.

Pall bearers announced by Green Bros., who directed the funeral are as follows: Chas. McDermott, Sam McDermott, B. P. Atkinson, Dan Tyson, Dr. A. S. Epperson and Albert Triggs.

Presbyterians Give Presents to Children

The Presbyterian children enjoyed a Christmas tree at the Presbyterian church at 7:30 Saturday evening.

W. G. Gillis, Superintendent of the Sunday School had charge of the program. Music and songs were furnished by the Christian Endeavor Societies. Several songs were sung and Katherine Mode, Harold Jackson and Giles Avriett recited a Christmas story.

Two beautiful trees loaded with presents of fruit and candy were presented to the children which made their hearts very happy.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK IS BETTER WITH NEW YEAR

FALL TRADE DISAPPOINTING IN MEASURE BUT REASONS ARE ASSIGNED

Prosperity looms ahead as the New Year approaches.

This is the general verdict of business men everywhere in Cameron.

Fall trade, somewhat disappointing to the merchants, is accounted for. The holding movement for cotton, coupled with the price decline, slowed up activities some. But the general depression felt for the past two years has been relieved to a great extent, although money is not as easy as expected.

Bankers say that liquidation has been good and the farmers are beginning the New Year with debts paid and plenty of feed stuff for the new crop.

Ready advance of money for agricultural channels will ease up conditions after the first of the year.

Tax paying time is at hand and this will take a considerable sum but opinion is that payments will reach a high average.

Finn Runs 6 Miles Every Morning For Training Exercise

Henry Karhunaari is undaunted
by rain and mud.

The grind of training must be kept up. Athletes must do their daily exercise or lose in the race for laurels.

And so the Mighty Finn keeps up the grind. It is said that fighters dread the grind and sacrifice of training more than the battle. It is known that harder work is done before than during the match.

Thursday morning Karhunaari ran six miles. He usually goes three miles out on the Gause or Milano road and returns the same way. Many see the wrestler as he takes to the road in the early morning hours before traffic crowds in.

An interesting display is the litographs and the belt of the Finn which has been placed up for the winner of the match Monday night against Harry Demetral of Dallas. The belt is on display in the show window of the Thomas drug store. Many have stopped to look at the prize of the Finn who declares that no man on earth can beat him fair and take his belt away from him.

This belt has been in his possession for a number of years. He prizes it highly and will defend it with all his might Monday night against Demetral of Dallas.

W. F. Plocek Home is Burglarized Sunday Night; Loss Heavy

Jewelry valued at $50 or $60 was taken by thieves from the home of W. F. Plocek Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Plocek and family had returned home from Burlington at about seven o'clock Sunday night and as they arrived at their home saw a car in front of the house. Parties driving the car were ready to leave and soon had the car in motion and disappeared.

Thinking their actions strange Mr. Plocek's suspicions were aroused further, and as he entered the home he found the burglars had searched thru the home leaving clothing scattered about.

All the jewelry of the home including a wrist watch and a bracelet valued at $50 or $60 were stolen.

According to Mr. Plocek the thieves rode in a coupe. He immediately telephoned city marshal Slocumb. So far no arrests have been made and no clue has been found to establishing the identity of the thieves.

On Deer Hunt

NEGRO BOY THOUGHT KILLED IN 1876 CAUSED DEATH OF TWO; PIONEER TELLS STORY OF TRAGEDY IN BASTROP COUNTY

A. J. Jackson who will be 83 years of age in February was here to spend the Christmas holidays in the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Pugh near Cameron related a story of tragic appointments the other day of how a negro boy taken innocently by a white man to his home in Williamson county led to the death of two and penitentiary for another.

Negroes thought the boy had been killed by other negroes and lynched the father of the boy. Two members of the mob were convicted.

Mr. Jackson came to Texas in 1874 and settled at Hill Prairie in Bastrop county. The story he relates is about events occurring in 1876.

The story begins as follows: A negro woman was going to church and she did not know the way. The mother of the little boy allowed him to go and show her the way and to stay at the church until she came back. The little boy did not want to stay at the school house and came back and sat down at the cross roads.

The other angle of the story is told in Mr. Jackson's own words as follows:

"In 1876 Print Olive, who lived near Lawrence Chapel, Williamson county came by Hills Prairie and there was a little negro boy setting at the cross roads, he had the little boy get up behind him and took him home to Lawrence Chapel with him. When the negro boy was missed a negro boy hauling wood was suspicioned as doing away with him. Then this boy stated that he had seen the little boy setting there and the father spoke up and told him that he lied, that he "did not see that boy."

Then the negroes suspicioned him and one night a negro mob took him out and hung him. The officers caught some of the mob and they were tried and one turned states evidence and was sent to the penitentiary and hung.

We came to Milam county directly after this occurrence. About a year later a young man came from Print Olive's to Conoley school house to church and met William Thomas and went home with him for dinner and when he went back home he spoke of meeting Mr. Thomas and the little negro heard it and enquired about Mr. Thomas because he knew him in Bastrop county. The little negro was sent to John Nash at McDade with instructions for him to send him home to Gus Hubbard at Hills Prairie.

OLD FIDDLERS THRILL AUDIENCE TUES. NIGHT

LED BY UNCLE MIKE JAMES BIG HOLIDAY PROGRAM IS STAGED

Although weather conditions prevented many from attending the entertainment Tuesday night when the old fiddlers gave a recital at the Yoe High School auditorium more than a hundred came for the program which was one of the best ever given in this section.

Led by Uncle Mike James, Texas' champion fiddler, the masters of old music gave the audience such an exhibition seldom heard anywhere in the country.

Rain fell throughout the day and continued to fall until after the program had started. The audience was made up largely of people of advanced years and all seemed to enjoy the program, calling for special numbers from the floor not included in the regular program. The old masters never failed them as they could play any selection asked for.

At 8:15 when it appeared certain that the auditorium would not be filled the program was begun.

Edgar Wilson who was master of ceremonies appeared in blackface, introducing the old masters each with appropriate remarks. Mr. Wilson also gave the program spirited jig dance when Uncle Mike played "Ten Cent Cotton."

T. A. Howell, the music master of Cameron, was there to lead out in the special selections allotted to him and to encourage the masters with second fiddle.

T. M. Mabry in addition to his special selections, leading out with "Big Taters in Sandy Land," gave the folks a jig while Uncle Mike played a lively selection. He was contested by Edgar Wilson while the music was in progress and the crowd gave its approval by loud cheers. Mr. Mabry can dance as well as play the fiddle.

Uncle John Story got a big hand when he played his favorite selections including "I want to go to Heaven but ain't got no shoes." Mr. Story was called back for more selections. Uncle John is one of the best of the old time fiddlers and enjoys playing as well as any man.

Uncle Pete Wilson, former school teacher in the log house days is the smallest but loudest of them all. He played to the delight of the audience being applauded much.

An unexpected contribution was the playing of Mr. Thompson of Rogers. Tom Choate of Buckholts and J. L. Clinton of Cameron could not attend the entertainment.

One of the pleasing features of the program was the dance number of Little Miss Ruth Hobson who gave the Charleston and was called back by a great wave of applause. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Hobson. The old fiddlers were delighted with this contribution and complimented the little girl.

Uncle Mike James will return to Houston by Sunday and in the meantime is being entertained here in the homes of his friends.

It became known here Tuesday that radio firms are seeking his services and at last one representative was in the audience.

A big feature of the program was the piano with Mrs. T. A. Howell playing and the guitars featuring Joe Matula and Ray Mabry.

Real Championship Match May Be Held In Cameron Soon

Mat fans are stirred to new heights of interest by the development Thursday indicating that a real championship match may be staged here between Henry Karhunaari and Waino Ketonen of Boston.

Ketonen is a real middleweight champion and can make 158 pounds. He is the man who beat Karhunaari and took from him the championship. It became known Thursday that

FINN GETS A RETURN MATCH WITH DEMETRAL

PUTS UP BELT AND AGREES TO WRESTLE WINNER TAKE
ALL MONDAY NIGHT

Hailed as a championship match about which centers the greatest possible interest, Henry Karhunaari is to meet Harry Demetral here on Monday night January 2 in a match which holds the belt of the Finn at stake.

Karhunaari lost to Demetral two weeks ago but claimed foul. A return match has been arranged and to show his good faith with the people of Cameron the Finn has agreed to wrestle winner take all and to put up his belt. If the Dallas man wins he gets the coveted prize won by the Finn when he was champion.

Opinion is pretty well divided among fans as to who is the better man. Both have impressive records. In their match here two weeks ago the Finn seemed to have the better of the argument so far as experience goes but Demetral is a powerful man and a great wrestler, having met and conquered many good men and some of the best.

The match here Monday night climaxes the season so far. If the Finn cannot throw Demetral he will no longer hold his position of prestige in Cameron. Henry says he wants to live here but if he cannot meet and beat all comers he has little chance to hold his prestige among the fans here.

Demetral is determined to uphold the prestige of his victory over the Finn her two weeks ago. The Dallas man is one of the best ever seen in this section.

The largest crowd ever attending a match in Cameron will likely be present Monday night January 2 when the men are called to the mat for the match.

The doors will open at 7 o'clock and the match will begin at 8 o'clock. Ringside seats are in demand and those who desire a close up position will have to come early.

HARD LUCK WRESTLER IS THE FATE OF JOE

LOSE MATCH WITH DALLAS
MAN WHEN VICTORY
SEEMED SURE

Joe Montana is a hard luck wrestler. Joe is a good man but has hard luck.

He lost to Harry Demetral of Dallas Monday night after he had apparently defeated the great Greek. Demetral was groggy from head locks and was staggering about the ring groping for his opponent.

Montana with strength apparently waning was soon in apparently as bad shape as Demetral and after he had the Greek on the mat with the head locks and all but placed his shoulders to the floor, he turned to the referee to say something and the Greek nailed him with a head hold and threw him.

There was an uproar. The crowd was evidently for Joe, who protested. The men went to their rooms where Joe was found to be suffering from an injury to his side. In order to satisfy the fans the men were called to the ring again after the fall and Demetral again threw Montana.

Montana wants to meet Demetral again, he says, as he was not in the best of condition when he met him here on Monday night.

It is not announced if this match will be arranged as the Legion is interested in providing the best possible attractions for the fans. Montana has lost three matches here. He shows great class and is a powerful man but fate seems against him on the Cameron mat.

Ketonen is coming to Texas in early January and it is hoped the American Legion managers of the wrestling bouts here can arrange a match between these men.

AMERICAN LEGION TO USE THE BILL BOARDS

PROGRESS OF WAR VETS FOR FIRST DECADE TO BE EMPHASIZED

Posters depicting the progress of The American Legion during the first decade of its life will appear on the bill boards of Cameron for a whole month beginning February, it was announced today by H. M. Akers, commander of Edwin Hardy Post of the Legion. Arrangement have been made for the use of bill board space here during the month in order that the ideals and aims of the Legion may be placed before the people of the city, according to the commander.

The posters will depict in a vivid way the real spirit of the Legion, Commander Akers said. They will be symbolical of the Legion ideal of service to country in peace time as in war, which the Legion is carrying out in its community service, Americanism, political education, child welfare and similar activities.

The poster has been made up from a sketch drawn especially for the Legion by Chester A. Bratton, a well known artist of Chicago. It has a decorative background in which the main figure is the Goddess of Liberty standing with arms uplifted in consecration of the sacrifices made by the fighting men of America in the World war. In the foreground is a panoramic scene depicting the city, agriculture and industry. At the top is the name "The American Legion" and at the bottom the slogan, "In peace, as in war—we serve."

Similar posters will be displayed in almost every city and town in America during February to give national emphasis to the service which the Legion is now rendering to community, state and nation, Commander Akers stated. More than 17,000 of the posters are being sent out from National Headquarters of the Legion at Indianapolis to be posted throughout the country. The Edwin Hardy Post will begin an intensive membership campaign which will reach its climax during the month the posters are on the boards, Commander Akers announced.

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking Nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

Rockdale Postmaster Believed Killed in Automobile Accident

Rockdale, Dec. 26.—Elmer I. Wade, postmaster of Rockdale, was found on the street in a dying condition here Sunday night. He was taken to a Cameron hospital but died on the operating table within a few minutes after arriving there.

Wade was apparently hit by an automobile, the condition of his body showing evidence. He had attended and later gone to the postoffice. When church services early in the evening struck he was in front of the postoffice crossing the street to his room.

The body of Elmer I. Wade was taken to Rockdale Monday morning following his death here and the funeral was held there Tuesday with hundreds of people in that section attending, paying their last tribute to the departed. Mr. Wade was reared in Rockdale and had been postmaster there for several years.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, say well-known druggists here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

●This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

"Electricity!---

The Tireless Servant of America's Prosperity"

Says Lewis E. Pierson
President of the United States
Chamber of Commerce

"Many factors have contributed to the pre-eminent position of America's workers, but underlying everything else has been the fact that the American wage-earner has had more horse power at his elbow than the worker of any other industrial nation."

While the rest of the world wrestles with unrest and industrial strife, capital and labor in America work shoulder to shoulder on a basis that has resulted in higher standards of living than those enjoyed by any other people.

The most highly developed system of electric power equipment and facilities in the world has helped make this condition of affairs possible.

Because of the engineering skill and organizing ability which have gone into the expansion of America's power plants there is available to American industry today more electrical energy than is produced in all the rest of the world combined.

Nearly a million miles of transmission and distribution lines supply American industry with more than thirty million horse power. Expressed in terms of man power, this is equivalent to the potential service of forty helpers for every worker in this country.

Increasing as it does, the production capacity of the worker by forty fold, this great industrial force has improved the financial status of American labor approximately 50 per cent in the last fifteen years, while at the same time materially decreasing the cost of manufactured articles.

In the light of such achievement, it is obvious that the interests of American business and American family life will be served best by the careful preservation of the principle of individual initiative by which such accomplishments have been made possible.

GROWTH OF CHRISTIANITY

Religious controversies precipitate vague reports that the church-going population was in rapid decline. That the contrary is true is not known better than by the millions of church members in the United States.

An Eastern clergyman discloses that at the time of the American Revolution there was only one professed Christian in Princeton University and two in Harvard University. Today denials of both sexes are members of some Christian churches of the university and college student church.

Diminishing church rolls are almost unknown in the United States, while millions of dollars are expended annually for new church edifices in the cities, towns and rural sections of the country. Every denomination is annually reporting increased national memberships.

Evidence of the stability of the church in America may be found in the general financial status. There has been a decisive increase in the salary standards of the ministry. Church buildings are better maintained and more luxuriously furnished. A few years ago only the most exclusive city churches could afford paid choiristers, pipe organs and skilled organists. Today these are not uncommon in the smaller towns and are customary in the smaller cities.

Whatever the present ecclesiastical debate may have done for good or evil, it manifestly has not detracted from church attendance.

FRUIT CAKE

Ma's makin' fruit cake. Don't dare to get under her feet now, for her mind is on candied citron peel and spice and how many cups of flour and just the right proportion of brown sugar.

Fruit cake has the delightful quality that the older it is, the better it tastes. They bake it with a paper wrapper on—womenfolk are laughing at this description, but never mind—and the whole house smells of fruit cake all the evening.

Just the top of a fruit cake, with its little hills that hide nuts in them and little upsticking bits of cherry or raisin, its mysterious valleys that are full of sweet congealment, its browned crustiness—oh, gee, Ma, can't we have just one piece apiece tonight, and make the rest do for Christmas.

Ma is firm. She has had these sumptuary supplications before, and she knows how to be firm when firmness is required. The fruit cake is the first thing she prepares for Christmas dinner, just as it is the last thing to be consumed.

And the best part of it is, that usually when you come to the fruit cake part of the main Yuletide meal, you're so full that there's no room for as much fruit cake as you'd like to eat, and so there's always enough for that, at least to bring the New Year's dinner to a fitting and fine conclusion.

PROSPEROUS YEAR AHEAD

Predictions that this year would witness a slowing down in business as compared with 1926 have already been confuted, and business this year has run so far ahead of last year's that a depression during November and December could not put 1927 behind the preceding twelvemonth in business volume.

It will be recalled that about a year ago the perpetually down-in-the-mouth had forebodings that this was to be a bad year for the railroads, which, combined with a building slump and the arrival of the automobile industry at the saturation point, was to shut down many of the steel mills. Apparently, the only reason they didn't predict a panic was fear of creating one prematurely.

This time the business pessimists played the wrong horse. Railroad freight loadings have broken records. It has been a year of bumper crops and in the main, favorable markets. Automobile manufacturers have established new records for earnings and production. Building operations have continued above normal through the country. And the United States Steel Corporation reports good earnings.

Signs are more favorable for a prosperous 1928 than they were a year ago for a prosperous 1927.

There are people who never lose an opportunity to enjoy being miserable.

It's a great life if you don't believe in everything you see, hear, think or know.

The man who predicts the coldest winter in 100 years may have no money with which to buy coal.

If he has begun to think he looks distinguished, he is a little past 40.

Casus belli: A rather small world containing numerous very large appetites.

The hardest job a kid faces is that of learning good manners without seeing any.

Still, an intellectual doubtless enjoys life when nobody is about to watch him sneer.

Virtue is relative. Most of the people who boast of their self-control haven't much to control.

Still, the man who knows it all wouldn't be objectionable if he'd keep it to himself.

Which are smarter, girls or boys? Well, which are more successful at dodging work through life?

Man's three ages: Hates work; works cheerfully as a matter of duty; wishes he could work.

CONVERSATIONAL CUSSING

By Mrs. Walter Ferguson

Why can't we have a committee appointed to invent some new cuss words?

Some years ago the shadow of Victorianism still hovered over us, when you read in the latest novel that a man clutched his head in both hands and muttered "My God" several times, you knew that one of the three things had happened. Either his wife had eloped with the best friend, or his son had absconded with the Sunday school funds, or he himself was bankrupt.

It took something staggering, stupendous, cataclysmic to drive a man to profanity. Now cold gravy on the dinner table can call forth an entire paragraph of oaths.

In the old books, during the ardent love passages—and what thrills we got out of those!—the hero might be so distracted as to forget himself and become prayerfully profane. When he got to that stage you knew he was a gonorrhea. The ultimate had been reached. Nothing was beyond.

Now the collegian invokes the Almighty when he buys a Coca-Cola for his best girl.

And positively the only thing that ever brought a profane word to a woman's lips in those bygone years, was when the villain deserted her. We'll admit that the circumstances called for something extreme. Today, however, matrons call upon God to bear witness every time they make a wrong lead in bridge, while maids frankly swear if the clerk gives them the wrong tint of face powder.

Profanity, in fact, is becoming tiresome. The air rings with it. The most select drawing rooms often sound little better than a 19th century pool hall.

And it's so easy to get the habit. Whenever you can't think of the right adjective the easiest word to grab for is Damn and to emphasize a statement when your vocabulary is limited, there is nothing more convincing than "God."

But after all, we might change our ejaculations now and then, so long as we change our other fashions so often. If we can't think up something new, let's go back to Shakespeare and pick up a few of those mouthy morsels like "Odbodkins." There is simply no sense in bringing God into every conversation.—Houston Press.

CHRISTMAS SERVICES CHRISTIAN CHURCH

LITTLE FOLKS ENJOY PROGRAM AND RECEIVE GIFTS FROM TREE

The little folks at the Christian church Saturday evening, December 24 were made happy not only by the tree and the remembrances for them from the Sunday school and from their teachers but also by hearing their own letters read by Santa himself over radio station XMAS. During the short program they rendered for Santa, little David Wade and Dora Emma Duncum won the hearts of the audience by their rendition, each alone, of "Away in a manger."

On Sunday evening, December 25, the church Christmas program was presented to a full house. After the opening song, "Joy to the World" by the invocation by Rev. J. P. Love, a few short recitations and songs were presented by the juniors and "O Come all ye faithful" was rendered by a quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Howell, Mr. W. M. Ryan and Miss Lorene Wade.

During the rendition of "The Holy City" by Miss Lorene Wade in a sweet impressive manner, the audience was brought to a receptive mood for the short pageant of "The Birth of Christ" which followed. The juniors sang "While Shepherds watched their flocks" during the scene of the Shepherds and Angels; and the above named quartet sang "Silent Night" during the last scene in which the wise men followed an electrically lighted star in semi darkness across the stage, until they reached Mary bending over her babe. As they knelt to present their gifts and angels hovered in the background, blue and rose colored lights were thrown alternately upon the scene as the quartet continued to sing. At the close of the pageant, "Humoresque" was rendered as a piano solo, with much feeling by Professor Smith while the audience brought their gifts reverently to the altar, gifts to be sent to the orphanage at Dallas. The pageant was highly praised by all who saw it, and some who have seen similar ones presented in larger cities, say it is one of the best of its kind they ever witnessed. It was arranged largely by Mrs. Wallace Jones and was directed by her. The success of the pageant was made possible by the beautiful colored lights so kindly loaned by Mr. Young of the Texas Power and Light Company and by the gracious assistance of Prof. Smith with the music in the emergency absence of the pianist.

The cast of the pageant was as follows:
Prophet Zecharias, Vernon Slocomb.
Angel Gabriel, Bonelle Neimast.
Other angels, Doris Adams, Althea Dickens and Edwardine Lovick.
Mary, Mrs. G. C. Walters.
Shepherds, Vernon Slocomb and Foy Kurnz.

Wise men, J. C. Brashear, Foy Kurnz and Ray Burke Jr.

Bridge Luncheon

Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock Miss Helen Green gave a beautifully appointed bridge luncheon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Green in honor of Miss Katherine Ramsey a classmate of S. M. U.

The rooms of the home were attractively decorated in Christmas berries, mistletoe and bells, with icicles and snow to show signs of winter.

The six tables were covered with dainty linen luncheon cloths with napkins to match. The dining table had for its center piece a blooming poinsettia embanked with red berries and mistletoe. At each end of the table were tapers and a silver coffee service at one end and a tea service at the other presided over by Miss Pauline Green and Mrs. John Green.

The guests were ushered in the dining room on arriving by Miss Helen. The plates were served buffet style from large trays on the buffet and serving table. With the plate beverage the guests found places at the six tables and enjoyed the following menu: cream chicken in ramkins, candied apple, celery curls, sandwiches, a-la-holly fruit salad, hot rolls and on each plate was placed candy on crystalized pineapple in a pretty red bag. Second course consisted of fruit cake and ice cream molded in bell shape iced in red. Plate favors were tiny poinsettias with tinkling bell for centers.

Luncheon cloths were replaced by red and white game covers and tally cards and score cards were in new year's design. After four spirited games of bridge Mrs. Eber Flinn had won high score and received a Dresden china tray. Miss Dorothy Eastland won second high and received a candle in dutch boy design in crystal holder. Honoree was presented with a powder jar in novelty design.

Young Richard, a Christmas Knight

Plucky Truck Driver Says It's All Up to One Behind the Wheel.

By ELEANOR E. KING

IT HAD been demonstrated that Christmas was to have its usual quota of snow. However, on the afternoon before that memorable day, the snow of the streets churned by a multitude of wheels and discouraged by the sun had worked itself up into a surface of several inches of slush. Dick was manning his delivery truck through this when suddenly he jammed on the brakes with every ounce of strength he possessed. The results were inevitable.

What chance has the fellow behind the wheel of the delivery car? Just what are the possibilities in such a job? Dick says: "It is all up to the one behind the wheel whether you drive on the dodge-em-miss-em plan, whether you make the corners on two wheels, whether you skid from one place to another, or whether you are a fairly sane driver." Although he was young, his schooling stopping at the prescribed state law requirements at sixteen, Dick did have good ideas.

Some people thought him peculiar. Perhaps it was because of his extremely lively imagination, which he lived continuously. Perhaps it was because of his extraordinarily high-pitched penetrating voice. No one, however, could resist his winsome smiles and flashing brown eyes. Dick, gracious and polite, made an ideal boy for the position, and the market and grocery realized their prize.

He was a great reader—of fiction. There was one book on Dick's list which he reread every so often. Its appeal was strong. There had been an attraction in this book, for he followed the fortunes of another Richard—Richard the Lion-hearted—who lived in a somewhat different day and age. Here was pictured a true knight, a leader, a fearless, bold and dashing crusader. Here was food for thought. Here was a pattern which might prove a help in forming a working plan for his own fortune. The comparison was further stimulated by a foreign section near the store which demanded frequent visits.

This acceleration of the adventure some spirit was a beginning. With fiery steel he met the densest traffic congestions with a sense of fearless leadership. He was Richard, the leader of a vast throng; never for a moment was he Dick, the driver of a delivery truck. He assumed knightly manners which by no means escaped the observations of the clerks in the store. An eagerness and vivacity pervaded his whole frame. He was the great Richard who constantly looked after, administered to, and provisioned his people.

The slush today was no obstacle in Dick's path, but when a woman suddenly stepped out from the curb and seemed disinclined to allow him free travel, in true chivalric fashion Richard brought his truck to a speedy halt, but not without difficulties. In a moment he found himself turning about. The woman screamed. By this time Dick, his car crosswise of the street headed in the direction the woman was going, had stopped. Dick stepped out onto the running board, doffed his cap and bowed very low to her.

"All traffic awaits on your pleasure and command," he proudly quoth our Richard.

This ceremony was all lost on the woman who gave a disgruntled remark and hurried on her way as though escaping a madman. Nor could traffic long be delayed on such a busy afternoon without offering some protest. The horns hooted and howled. Dick cranked up and got away as fast as possible.

At his next stop he was invited to help put up a Christmas tree. He couldn't refuse the lady; it was his duty to put up the tree. He knew Mrs. Caraballa's husband worked long hours and would have little time for such a task.

"I tried putting it up myself," explained Mrs. Caraballa, "but somehow I don't seem to get the combination of that business."

Dick fastened the rack around the trunk of the tree and showed Mrs. Caraballa that he was adjusting it so that there would be space enough under the trunk to hold a pan of water.

"We always do that and the tree keeps nice longer. The needles don't drop off so fast."

In a half hour he went merrily on his way singing a tuneless song of his own composition.

only to be later reported by a score of a different strain—the change of a few engines. Dick directed his fiery charges by the pursuit of the red until he reached his destination. He forgot his wheels. In the back of the delivery truck the next few minutes. The delivery presented an arrival was undelusive to everyone every particular of Richard's idealistic thinking. A home, the homes of eight or ten families, stood there being consumed by flames. The destruction of this burning, even though it was a ramshackle rundown, old frame structure, probably meant the loss of everything these people possessed. It would mean that a happy Christmas would be out to be—Dick just hated to think what it would be.

The fire was well under way. The whole upper story was a mass of flames which were rapidly eating their way into the lower part. The black smoke rolled skyward like so many huge clouds. A woman screamed. The firemen getting out their ladders, hoses and chemicals were too slow for Dick. A woman needed help. Dick made a dash for the burning building. When the account appeared in the newspapers, they noted that this was only one of the daring trips which Dick made into the fiery structure that day.

The heroic deeds which Dick performed on that memorable day before Christmas, his daring rescue of that pretty young Alice and her mother, and the cunning dog, are not to be forgotten. He proved that he possessed the name of Richard in its true sense. He proved that he could estimate himself a descendant of that illustrious hero, and not do him any injustice. Fired by the added exhilaration of the Christmas spirit and enthusiasm, his courage, bravery and valor had known no bounds.

Richard, for so he was known thereafter, had a Christmas which was to live always in his memory. The Richard, the bold, the daring knight was in the headlines of the newspapers for the next few days. A picture taken for the occasion held a place of prominence on the first page. He was even intimated in the newspapers that no doubt a wonderful fortune awaited such a person. Certain well-known "movie" directors were already dickering for the services of this distinguished youth. He was the hero of the hour. As Dick says: "It's all up to the one that's behind the wheel."

Making roof paint and other by-products from pinyon wood is the interesting process a western man has patented and with which he has had considerable success. His home-made outfit has already yielded a return of $1,500, it is said.

Manufacture from fish scales of "pearl essence," a liquid used in coating artificial pearls, backs of combs, brushes and dressing-table sets, is a new industry on the Pacific coast. A plant for the preparation of the "liquid pearls" has just been established near San Diego, Calif., and the product sells for from $60 to $200 per pound, depending upon the quality.

University of Pennsylvania professor reports that one of the causes of stammering and other impediments, is low oxygen consumption. In making their tests, the employ a breathing gauge which shows how much oxygen the subject uses during normal respiration.

German chemists are reported to have discovered a way for making wool distasteful to moths. The process is said not to injure in any degree the material, which retains the same appearance and has the same feeling after the treatment but repels the moths.

Heat from the stars can be measured and one of the instruments used to do it contains fly wings in the shape of a tiny "vane" suspended from quartz fibres in a small mirror. When a ray of starlight, passing through a prism, is trained on the blackened wings, the vane turns the fibre and the amount of the turn is registered by the mirror that reflects another beam of light along a calibrated arc.

For many years, natives of Brazil have relied upon the fibres of a species of wild pineapple to supply them with twine for their fishing line and nets, and now government scientists here have turned to the plant as a possible source of paper, suitable for the printing of bonds and currency. Tests by the bureau of standards have shown that the product has a bursting strength about the same as that specified for the finest papers made from rags and rope.

Household Notes

Pineapple as an important item in the reducing diet is becoming more popular every day. For one thing, the caloric value of pineapple is not high. The fruit sugar present is not fattening, although it provides energy and satisfies the craving for sugar. Aside from these more or less negative attributes, pineapple, because of its alkaline reaction, has a distinct value in preventing acidosis, always to be guarded against in reducing. As a source of Vitamin C, pineapple is excellent, also, and finally, it tastes good.

Peak pack of Pineapple—August of this year saw a decided increase in the packing of Hawaiian pineapple as compared with the pack of August a year ago. Last year 420,083 cases were packed during that month by the biggest company in Hawaii, this year 661,547 cases. This company's record of packing 1,607,845 cans of pineapple in one day, on July 17, 1926, was not equalled this year.

Making Our Winter Salads—Here is a salad that might very well be the piece de resistance for a Sunday supper, for it is a meal in itself. Dice a cold boiled chicken and add two-thirds as much chopped celery as there is chicken.

For each person place a slice of Hawaiian pineapple on a bed of lettuce leaves. Lay four tips of canned asparagus on each slice and over them put the chicken mixture. Garnish with slices of stuffed olives, sliced sweet pickles, or pimiento.

A lighter salad is made by boiling two large carrots until tender, shaping them and scooping out the centers. The carrot boats are then filled with a mixture of one cup of shredded cabbage, one-half cup crushed pineapple and one-fourth cup blanched almonds mixed with mayonnaise. The boats are served on lettuce leaves.

Mr. Speckles' Great Idea

Santa Claus sat on a bench next the sunny side of his North Pole bungalow. The old gentleman wore a worried and harassed look quite foreign to his usual jovial expression. Sam Speckles, a foreman in one of Santa's toy shops, passed by and noticed the good old saint. "What's the matter, Santa?" he asked.

"This job's getting too big for one man," answered Santa. "The world's getting better and better all the time, and that means I have that much more work to do, and it's getting to be a mighty hard task to make things enough to go around, let alone distributing them."

Mr. Speckles scratched his head. "Well," he said, "here's an idea, and I think it's a mighty good one. Remember that fine magazine full of stories and pictures and nice things you had the other day?" "Oh, you mean The Youth's Companion," said Santa. "Yes, that's it," answered Sam. "Well, it seems to me that if you'd tell a lot of parents about that magazine and how fine and enjoyable it was for boys and girls they'd give subscriptions to The Youth's Companion as a Christmas gift to lots of young folks and that would help you a lot."

"That's a mighty good idea," said Santa, "and, as a matter of fact, many parents do just that already, but—" Santa sighed, "I wish that more of them realized what a fine gift The Youth's Companion makes and would give it, too."

Just send your order to the address below, and we will see to it that our Uncle Sam relieves Santa of the burden of delivering at least one gift. Subscribers will receive:

Quart of Water Cleans Kidneys

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

LET US BE YOUR 1928 CLEANERS

DETESTABLE people," said Helen, winking a glare on the crowd milling about a bargain table. "Each one in search of the very best I am trying to get."

"Impossible," returned good old Cyrus from over his lading of bundles. "Some are men and cannot be in pursuit of the articles on your list."

Helen wanted to retort, "Stupid!" but laughed instead. "I don't mean they are looking for step-ins and teddies," she returned. "But we all want a gift for 40 cents. I'm so tired! I guess I'll go home."

And went, just like that. She was a kind of a sudden person, which was why Cyrus loved her, but had never found time and place right for telling her so.

Helen fell into a waiting jitney. But she was a weary. And how long since the nightmare started? It began in the summer, when conscience said she mustn't crocheted what she wanted to crocheted, but what would be useful come Christmas. Then came the slogan, "Shop Early." Helen had shopped early, but that did not mean she was able to avoid shopping late. The spirit of Christmas—love, good-will, peace. Where was it?

Her eyes closed.

"Detour!" exclaimed the driver, as he turned on a side road. He was an "extra" earning for college. During Christmas season he, like the rest of the world, overworked and underpaid. After driving 18 hours, he had taken this "detour" so the regular man could go and buy things. All the wives made all the husbands do the same.

"Therefore Clay Hamilton, who had no wife, drove the jitney. Drove it on and on. Perhaps dozed off. A wheel snapped. Something careened and something else smashed.

"Where can we be?" asked Helen, looking at a black highway.

The man laughed grimly. "I don't know where we are," he responded. Both turned to meet the old man who hobbled from the nearest house.

"Well," he cackled. "This is Middle-tem, the town folks forgot. Years ago we stopped running. We got no range, no phone, pretty high no in- habitants. Me'n my sister live here 'cause we ain't able to live nowhere else. Mrs. Gould is bedridden and her daughter stays to take care of her. Come in. You can't move on tonight, 'cause all crumpled up. And you can't walk if you've hurt your foot, as I suspect."

Outside the quaint house, with his shoe cut off, Clay made apology to Helen.

"I could kick myself," he said, "for leading you into such a scrape. I must have dreamed that sign 'Detour'! The truth is, I shouldn't have been driving. It's the—"

"Holiday rush," interrupted Helen. "I understand. I won't complain, though a roll of red tissue paper and of green ribbon aren't very efficient provisions for an overnight stay.

"Doesn't that coffee smell good?"

"Rather. If it wasn't that I know you are anxious to get home and find the poor Christmas preparations, I'd say, 'What larks!'"

"You may say it," returned Helen. "I'm reconciled. Glory be, there are no signs of holly in this house."

"Perhaps," said the young man, following her mood, though rather amazed, "we've reached a land where Christmas ends. A test! Miss Eliot, addressing their hostess as she entered with a tray. "Can you tell us the date of day after tomorrow?"

"Day after tomorrow is the twenty-fifth," she said calmly. Then she went out for more food, and Helen looked at Clay, as if they were old friends. The twenty-fifth of December was just a date!

They had actually got away from Christmas.

It was a curious evening, provided the young lady could be reconciled.

cussed everything but Christmas. The next day came, bringing a blizzard. For a little while of a search being made for the jitney, but it became evident "detour" had indeed been a dream. Never mind, Clay's ankle was getting better, and Helen felt like a child out of school.

In the afternoon the two hobbled and tripped, respectively, into the kitchen entry. Through the half-open door they saw their hostess and the daughter of the bed-ridden woman. What was it they bent over?

Helen's parcel, with its bunch of scarlet tissue, its bolt of green ribbon, its sprigs of artificial holly. But with what wistful eyes were the women regarding these gewgaws.

"They say," whispered Miss Gould, barely touching the pretties with finger tips discolored by iodine, "that in lots of places one never has a Christmas gift not tied up nice. I read it somewhere—the wrapping is half the gift!"

"Maybe so," said Miss Eliot. "I never had a Christmas present."

"I did have some good times," returned Miss Gould, "before ma took sick. Hung up my stockings and always got some little tricks. Wasn't contented, though. Used to hanker for a tree."

Helen turned quickly, not to be caught eavesdropping. In the parlor

For He Pulled Birchbark From Sticks in the Woodbox.

she confronted Clay Hamilton with the air of one about to reply to a loud-spoken objection.

"For goodness gracious' sake," she exclaimed, "don't say whatever you were about to. Stop right where you are, and help me. I have to contrive a Christmas present for at least a dozen people, and deck a tree for two. And nothing to do it with—not a thing. And it's already late and night closing in."

Right here was where Clay scored above any possibilities of Cyrus, who would surely have observed the inconsistency. "Let it close," said he. "The local shops aren't closed. They never open! How would a branch off that hemlock we can lade do for a baby tree?"

"Splendiferous," said Helen. Then she wanted to know what became of the wishbone she had seen on his plate at dinner? He had saved it, for good luck. And what was it one used to do with a wishbone? Why, make a pen wiper, to be sure. So Helen made one, and dressed it in red felt cut from her overshoe lining. Clay printed the rhyme:

Once I was a little part
Of a little hen,
Now I'll be a little slave
And help you clean your pen.

"It has all the earmarks of the perfect gift," quoth Helen. "For I doubt if any one here ever uses, much less has occasion to wipe a pen."

Then she sent Clay to gather the alder berries reachable from the porch. Later she strung these for a necklace on a bit of colored string from her parcel. After the Eliots had retired she went as eagerly to work as if she had never forgone Christmas. Twisting the strands of hay she made dainty baskets. She also constructed candlesticks of cornstalks, trimmed prettily with fringed husks. In the meantime Clay was not idle, for he pulled birchbark from sticks in the woodbox and borrowing needle and thread from the Eliot workbasket, sewed tiny hemlock sprigs into "Merry Christmas," making objects that Helen asserted would be considered "just wonderful" if discovered in a gift shop.

All was at length completed, but the two had little time for admiration of their handiwork, since the parcels must be wrapped with all the wealth of the tissue, the ribbon, the holly, and the seals.

And was Helen "tired to death" when all was complete? Nay, standing beside Clay on the little porch, listening to the crackling ice as trees swayed in the rising wind, she felt as if swaddled in the comfort of a great joy. Vainly had she thought herself "sick of Christmas." At her first chance to forget, she had worked her utmost to bring holiday to the forgotten town. With dawn, she knew the extent of her success. Clay, who had been limping about, told her that in every house some old body with trembling hands was unwrapping a gift sure to be treasured for years.

"And nothing for either of us," laughed Helen.

Yet a few moments after, when Miss Eliot entered the room, it was to say, "My dear, I never before noticed the pretty ring on your finger!"

Two golden hands clasped, an old-fashioned betrothal token, which Clay Hamilton had from his mother, and because it was always with him, had quite providentially taken on detour!

Just for Christmas You Know

by Robert Stead

THE sun was gliding the crests of the Rockies. How it glided them, this Christmas Eve! A line of gold ran to north and south, blocking them out against the champagne sky like huge crumpled masses of purple cardboard. Great fan-shaped shafts of light were piercing the heavens, touching to bursts of color every tattered remnant of cloud. But below, the shadows were settling on the foothills, and in the valleys it was almost dark.

Almost dark, too. It was in the heart of little Mrs. Derrit. For three years she had worked the farm alone, and each Christmas seemed a little darker than the one before. She was beginning to wonder if it is true that time heals all sores. It was five years now since Dave had died, and three since young David left the farm, and the ache seemed heavier than ever.

Mrs. Derrit rose from the rocker where she had been sitting beside her kitchen stove. The gloaming had swallowed up the walls; her few cheap pictures had faded into night; only a stray flicker from the fire glinted on the cream separator in the corner of the room. She crossed the floor and with a hand fumbling in the darkness, found the match-box on the wall. Then she lighted her lamp and set it on the kitchen table. One must eat, even on Christmas Eve.

If Olson, the hired man, had stayed it would have been not quite so bad. But he had done his chores up early and left for the dance in the Swedish settlement across the valley. Olson was Mrs. Derrit's right hand, without which the farm work would have been impossible. He was a bachelor, living in a lean-to beside the machinery shed, and coming to the house only for his meals, which he ate for the most part in silence.

Mrs. Derrit placed food on her kitchen table and sat down before it. Her meal was frugal, not so much from necessity as from weariness. She ate and drank mechanically, then arose, washed her few dishes and put them away, wiped her table and spread a colored cloth upon it. The light from the lamp fell gently on its patterns. She drew the rocker to the table and sat down. The little clock on the shelf said only six o'clock. It was three hours until bedtime, and who could say how long until morning?

Her little hands found work to do—mending for Olson. For a while her needle darted back and forth, trailing a little thread of silver light in the glow from the lamp; then presently work and needle rested in her lap. For was not this Christmas Eve? And down through memory came a procession of these gracious anniversaries, marking the birth of the Child, and sacred to children everywhere in Christendom. In a moment or two Mrs. Derrit was no longer seated in her little cabin in the vast foothill valley, but was back in that home down East where little David had first entered her life. What Christmas Eves were those! What laughter and shrieks of delight when Big Dave, her husband, with his great fur coat with the red sash and whiskers of cotton batting burst through the door, being unable to accommodate his bulky form to the chimney after the tradition of Santa Claus! What feasting and fun, and after little David had grown tired of play, what hours of domestic rap- ture linking husband and wife! It all seemed now so strange and unreal, as though it had been part of some previous incarnation.

Down the years came memory. David was now a healthy lad. Trouble- some, sometimes, but never bad; just overflowing with that boyishness which no mother quite understands and none would ever relinquish. Then the breaking of the old home ties and the plunge into the great West. Young Dave had taken to the new land even more readily than old

David had.

How he grew! How he

the field, his skill in the corral! How soon his mother found she had no boy at all, but two grown men in her household!

And then that sad, sad night when Dave, his father, had been brought home by neighbors who found him in the road. Just at the crossing of the creek, in the lower end of the farm, it was. No one ever knew how it happened, but all supposed he had slipped from his wagon as it lurched on the pebble trail. It was piled high with wood from the valley; perhaps he had been clambering down to steady the load as it lurched, and slipped under the front rear wheel. There was frost in the earth, and a little snow on it; she remembered there was still snow on his face when they laid him in the room.

David had stood by her for two years, but his infatuation for the Ransom girl had been his undoing. They would have nothing of the farm, after that. David could earn big wages in a distant city, working in an automobile factory, where there were no cows to milk and no chores to do after supper. So they had gone. She had blessed them—what else could a mother do?—and had settled down to her farm and her memories.

For some time glowing letters came back from David, and from his wife, whom Mrs. Derrit still thought of as the Ransom girl. She held no spite, did Mrs. Derrit, but if it hadn't been for the Ransom girl—! Then after a while the letters fell off, until they almost stopped. It was two months now since she had heard from David. Not even a letter for Christmas!

Mrs. Derrit arose and went to her window. The moon was now up, flooding the great shoulders and sides of the valley with light, just as it had done that night when they brought Dave home to her, with the little patch of snow still on his cheek. There was snow tonight, too, just a light sitting of it as there had been then. . . . It would be cold and frozen down by the creek. For a while she had avoided the spot, but afterwards it had a fascination for her. Often, on moonlight nights, she had walked that far. She wondered if Dave—her Dave—knew? Perhaps. Who could say that even tonight, this Christmas eve, he was watching, waiting somewhere, wondering if she still remembered? Remember? Aye, for ever and ever!

She drew on a shawl. It could not be so very cold, the night was so bright, the moonlight so soft against the edge of the hills. The door creaked as she opened it; there was frost on the hinges, but her heart was warm; she was going to do her vigil for Dave. Down the winding road she went; the road along which they had brought him home. How warm it was! Or was it cold? Cold and warmth are so much alike. How the road stretched on and on! It never had seemed so far. And the moon—why was the moon growing dark, when it had not yet reached the zenith? And what made it sway like that?

Ah, here was the spot, the very spot. She sat down on the ground. This was where they found him. Her hands touched the snow, but it was not cold. Nothing was cold. All was warm. But the moon had gone out. Why had the moon gone out? . . . Ah, there he was! Dave! She felt his arms about her; she felt his kiss on her lips. There was snow on his cheek!

"Don't you know me, mother? Don't you know me?" he was saying, as she opened her eyes. She was in her room, there was no doubt about that. Yes, it was her room; through the open door she could see the cream separator in the kitchen. But who was that woman, that—Why, it was the Ransom girl! And what was she carrying? She was bringing it to her; why was she bringing it to her? And David, kneeling beside her bed?

"We brought you another little David, for Christmas, mother," the Ransom girl was saying, and before Mrs. Derrit knew it a little face was pressed against hers, and suddenly her hard, dry cheeks were wet. "David, David," she cried. "Your Grandpa's David!"

Big David's hand was in hers.

"You found me on the road, David?" she asked, after a while.

"Yes," he answered, gently. "Just—just where—it happened."

Her eyes were big and bright. "I knew he would come," she said. "But I didn't know he would bring you, and wee David, and—the Ransom girl!"

"Well, here we are," the Ransom girl rejoined. "The city is all right for a while, but when a man has a wife, and a family, it's back to the farm! We were keeping it a secret from you, just for—just for Christmas, you know!"
